

Byungsik Jung, Deputy Dean

Byungsik Jung

Byungsik Jung joined the Asian Development Bank Institute (ADBI) as Deputy Dean in September 2024.

Profile

Byungsik Jung is Deputy Dean of ADBI, specializing in international finance, trade agreements and international tax. He was previously Director General for International Tax in the Republic of Korea Ministry of Economy and Finance, and Bureau Member in negotiating the Terms of Reference for the UN Framework Convention on International Tax Cooperation. He also was a Deputy Director General for the international finance bureau, and co-chair for the G20 International Financial Architecture Working Group. Mr. Jung was responsible for the negotiations for various tax treaties and numerous free trade agreements between the Republic of Korea and other countries.

Mr. Jung earned his Doctor of Juridical Science (S.J.D.) in international trade laws from American University Washington College of Law in 2008, his LL.M. in financial law from Georgetown Law Center in 2007, and his LL.B. from Korea University in 1994. He was admitted to the New York Bar in 2008.

